Dan LCC. Releases A New, Innovative Japanese Learning Service: Wasabi

-Connecting the Japanese elderly who are eager to be with others with Japanese learners who are eager to study with native speakers-

Nagasaki, Japan -July 1st 2015- Wasabi (<http://www.wasabi-jpn.com>) has goes live all and starts providing one on one lessons with native speakers via Skype at the best prices on the market; JPY5,800 *$47 or €42 -20/6/2015-, for 50 minutes once a week.

About Wasabi

Wasabi is an online Japanese learning tool, especially designed for speaking practice. Wasabi is featuring the Japanese elderly in order to give Japanese learners the best price, e.g. 50% of the market prices. We provide training for those who are interested in our program in order for them to become familiar with our curriculum. All of our lessons are guided by these lovely senior citizens who are eager to talk to Japanese learners.

About Our Supervisor

Ms. Akiko Yokoyama is the Editorial Supervisor of Wasabi, who designs the curriculum and the educational materials for Wasabi. She is a linguistics major, a Ph.D. candidate at Hitotsubashi University, a visiting fellow of Harvard Yenching Institute and GSAS at Harvard University. She also passed the Japanese Language Teaching Competency Test in 2013.

About the Campaign

In commemoration of Wasabi's launch, Dan LCC. has released a campaign; Wasabi Japanese Speech Contest. Regardless of whether learners have Wasabi membership or not, he or she can participate on the Internet and may win a round-trip ticket to Japan.
